

Person Who Made an Impact on My Life

Every person has a unique character that is formed under the impact of various factors. These include the environment, social status, financial status, and many other elements that play a vital role in the life of any individual. However, being social creatures, people are most of all impacted by other people as they since the first minutes of their lives, up to the last ones, they live in society and interact with its representatives. That is why I think there are always people who made the most significant impact on persons' characters and preconditioned the formation of their value systems, visions, and actions. For me, I am sure that my mother has made the most outstanding contribution to the formation of my personality.

Since my childhood, my mother has been my best friend. She was always ready to help me in different situations and resolve my problems, no matter how difficult they were. Being a small child, I did not realize the importance of this support and effort needed to make your child happy by providing all necessary things, such as food, clothes, and toys. However, today, I understand that parenting is a difficult challenge, and it demands much time and significant sacrifice to guarantee that your child is happy. My mother managed to do it and never talked about problems she had because of me.

I have always appreciated her unique view on life and the world surrounding us, and I want to believe that I also managed to take it after her. As any family, we had some difficult times; however, she always was optimistic and sure that we would be able to overcome challenges and move forward to attain new goals. This belief and readiness to struggle inspired me and the people who surrounded my mother, making us concentrate and do our best to resolve problems and improve our states. This unique position significantly impacted my character and the way I face challenges today. I always try to remain optimistic and struggle to pass through hard times.

However, her attitude to education and knowledge was one of the essential factors impacting my character. She did everything to cultivate the idea that education is fundamental for contemporary society, and to attain success, a person should be ready to study to acquire the knowledge and skills that are needed to build a career. Due to this idea and my mother, who promoted it, I early recognized the importance of education and decided to do my best to get it. I think it became a turning point in my life, and the mother became a person who managed to create the basis for the positive shift in my mentality.

In conclusion, this idea might not be original as mothers always play the most important role in people's lives. However, thinking about a person who made an impact on my life, I cannot but speak about her as I believe that all I have today is to a certain degree preconditioned by my mother's significant contribution. Her optimism and attitude to life helped me to become a stronger person who is ready to struggle to achieve desired goals. There were also many people in my life who influenced the formation of my mentality and value system; however, I am sure that my mother played the most significant role.
